Book Summary

Romance genre: Contemporary romance

Kline owns Brooks Media, which has launched their new app called TapNext (ie: Tinder) and every employee must have a profile on this dating app.

Jamie and Em discuss how ethical this is.

Georgia is following her company's policy and she has the app. Her name is TapRoseNext and she gets a dick pic from some man named Ruck. She is using her best friend Cassie's profile picture so people don't know who she is. Despite the initial terrible start, Ruck and Georgia (as TapRoseNext) start hitting it off and chatting. Ruck is Kline Brooks, but Georgia does not know that yet.

What is the driver of the story?

Kline's meddling mother calls him and tells him she's got a date for him to this event at the Rainbow Room. Instead, he says he already has a date. He walks around his office and sees Georgia bent over, and her ass is stunning. How did he not notice her before? He asks her out to this event and she's nervous, but says yes.

So, they arrive at the Rainbow Room

- She comes late
- They grab a drink and they slowly start to make out. Her lips swell because she's allergic to and his drink contained limes
- She downs Benadryl and gets high then they go back to his place and she strips down naked and straddles him on his bed, wanting him to sleep with her.

So, Kline is chatting to TapRoseNext and starts to think that Georgia is this girl he's talking to. So, he manically goes to his office, breaks into HR and finds her account name! and yes, its her!

Georgia and Kline go to the Hamptons and she tells him she's a virgin. So, they start to watch a movie and cuddle. She falls asleep on the couch and he carries her off to their bed and they sleep together.

Kline and Georgia have both been chatting with people on TapNext.

Kline knows that Georgia is TapRoseNext since he broke into HR.

Georgia does not know that Ruck is Kline. Kline keeps up this charade because Georgia is more open to Ruck than she is with Kline.

Key words: modern, billionaire, New York
